

THE TREES OF NEW YORK CITY

20,000:

The approximate amount of trees in Central Park. Several locations are excluded from this data set as large parks undergo different inspection processes.

Estimated savings of $110 million

from ecological benefits of the trees planted in NYC.

The London Planetree (Platanus × acerifolia) is most commonly found, with a total of 87,000 recorded. They are known to be resilient in urban conditions, making it a popular choice for cities.

81%

of the trees reported to be in good health, with 15% rated poor health and 4% in fair health.

Tree Counts distributed across Five Boroughs

